Encounters: The Open Program at CDTPS
6-12 November 2018

In 2014, the JHI Program for the Arts supported a residency by the Workcentre of Jerzy Grotowski and Thomas Richards. This month, Encounters brings the women of the Workcentre to Toronto from Italy. Felicita Marcelli (Italy), Agnieszka Kazimierska (Poland), Grazielle Sena (Brazil), and Pauline Laulhe (France) will join us over fall reading week (STG campus) to offer three days of workshops and three separate performances. Don't miss it! The schedule of events is linked here.

Encounters is hosted by the Centre for Drama, Theatre and Performance Studies and supported by the Jackman Humanities Institute Program for the Arts, University College, Theatre and Performance Studies (UTSC), English & Drama (UTM), the Department of English, the Emilio Goggio Chair in Italian Studies, the Department of Slavic Languages and Literatures, and the Centre for Comparative Literature.

JHI Distinguished Visiting Fellow,
Philippe Schlenker
Monday 29 October -- Friday 2 November

A good time was had by all! The Jackman Humanities Institute hosted Philippe Schlenker (NYU and Institut Jean-Nicod, Paris), whose wide-ranging interests in linguistics, philosophy, sign languages, semantics, and the making of meaning made us think about what happens when we communicate and understand communication.

- 29 Oct. UT-Scarborough visit with faculty members and students in Philosophy, What is Super Semantics?
- 30 Oct. Public lecture, Meaning in Sign, in Speech, and in Gestures
- 31 Oct. UT-Mississauga visit with faculty members and students in Linguistics and Philosophy.
- 1 Nov. JHI Fellows Lunch on Animal Semantics; one-on-one consultations in the afternoon
- 2 November -- Master Class (by registration) -- Triggering Presuppositions
Call for Faculty Researchers
Deadline 23 November!

We are accepting applications from appointed faculty members in the research and teaching streams at all three University of Toronto campuses for participation in the 2019 Scholars-in-Residence. Faculty members are matched with a cross-disciplinary team of five senior undergraduate students for the four weeks from 6-31 May 2019. The teams will work 20 hours/week on the research project of their faculty supervisor. Projects will be based at all three campuses: ten at St. George, five at UTM, and five at UTSC.

SiR Faculty Supervisor Profile
Prof. Leslie Regan Shade: Privacy Stories
Privacy is at the core of some of the most urgent scholarly and policy-based conversations unfolding today. In Professor Leslie Shade’s 2018 Scholars-in-Residence project, “Privacy Stories,” students explored the foundational questions in privacy research (including Canadian Privacy Legislation, surveillance, privacy in education and the workplace, and digital citizenship) while working collaboratively on developing a digital privacy policy toolkit for an audience of young adults. Professor Shade, Associate Dean, Research in the Faculty of Information, led an interdisciplinary team of undergraduate researchers from public policy and international relations, economics, gender and women’s studies, and philosophy and bioethics; students brought their unique disciplinary expertise to bear on research questions and tasks associated with Professor Shade’s SSHRC-funded project. Throughout a month that included guest speakers from other institutions, graduate student-led workshops on digital security, digital storytelling, and social media practice, and a visit to RightsCon—a global digital rights conference involving policymakers, activists, and scholars—students produced a Privacy Guidebook, a web resource to help young adults understand their rights and navigate the vicissitudes of social media.

17-18 Year in Review

We’ve done an annual report every year since 2008-2009. They are large documents because we do a lot of activities each year, and they become an archive of everything and everyone for that year. But this time, we have done something special. Working with graphic designer Gilbert Li, we created a beautiful highlights report that tells the story of 2017-2018. Copies are available in the JHI office.
